A MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1851.—Agents are wanted to circulate the following new and beautiful works, (retail price, $2 50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA;

NEW PICTORIAL WORKS.

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, customs, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabitants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for the work.

The volume forms a large octavo, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, handsomely bound in muslin, gilt, or leather, as the purchaser may prefer, at a very liberal discount, when quantities of not less than twenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;

comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited. SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decided by the best books that greats can possibly on.

SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the iterary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

direction to whom and where it is to be paid, will have the same remitted.

There is a great advantage in purchasing the Society's drafts—that the Bank has a branch in each of the principal towns in Ireland, and thus the losses by discount, and otherwise, are avoided.

The Society keeps an office at No. 22 Spruce street, to which Emigrants can apply to obtain situations for which they are fitted.

Orders from employers in the country, stating the services required, the wages, and the cheapest modes of conveyance, and giving a respectable reference, will meet with prompt attention.

The Society will be thankful for all circumstantial and early information of any franat, imposition, or outrage committed on Emigrants, and will endeavor speedily to apply a remedy.

AMERICAN TELEGRAPH ham Tripps, myself:

For the American Telegraph IMPROMPTU.

[The writer a few days since, while walking on Pennsylvania avenue, near the Capitol, observed a lady and her companion discoursing in the dumb language, and, believing her to be a mute, experienced a sympathetic emotion at her supposed misfortune. On a subsequent meeting the "gush of melody" from her lips convinced him that both her tongue and eyes possessed a charm peculiarly fascinating, and occasioned a visit from his truant muse.]

And canst thou speak a tender word, And use thy bonny, guileless lip, To talk with fascinating strain That honey-bees would die to sip? Methought thy tongue was silent when I met thee smiling on thy way, E'en like kind Hebe, when she strolls To kiss the blushing buds of May.

The flower hung down his gentle head, To shed a sympathizing tear, And birds e'en hushed their song of joy, And zephyrs sighed when thou wert near; While I, wrapped in a holy dream, In silence breathed a prayer for thee, And wished that I myself were dumb,

If thou wouldst talk with eyes to me

And oh! enchanting was the spell-An hour—an age I may regret, For hope with me will never stray, But whispering tells me to forget. Go bid the sun take back his ray, Or tell the stars no longer shine; As well may they perform that task,

As could I slight a glauce of thine.

I am sure, if ever I lose my keep hidden in the recesses of my own heart? heart," she added, with the prettiest little because, good friend, I feel myself an injured man, and if that will not make a man speak out he must be dumb, indeed. Did you ever know [To be concluded in our next.] man with a grievance who kept it to himself? Did you ever know one who was not forever dragging it into conversation, a propos of free trade, the death of the Emperor of China, the warm winter, the great exhibition, or the Papal aggression? Meet such a man and begin to talk to him (if you dare) on any conceivable subject, and I'll wager my hat—which is a new one—to a penny roll, that within two minutes he will be deep in the matter of his own grievance, as though it sprang out of, or formed an essential part of the topic you started. There are accomplished little boys much beloved by burglars, who, if they can only get their heads through an orifice of any kind, can always drag their bodies through after them. The man with a grievance only wants to get a word in, and his "grievance" will safely follow.

And why, then, am I to be silent?

When every other injured man proclaims his wrongs to the world, why should not I tell of the cruel injustice I suffered from that coldblooded, heartless, jilting — ? But hold! I must not jump too quickly "in medias res," in

Mrs. fat, very vulgar, Primrose had been for some time gathered to her forefathers, though Tom declares she never had any. There were two juvenile Primroses— young ladies in short frocks and frilled encasenents of the lower limbs shout twelve and thirteen years of age, and under the care of a middle-aged maiden, their governess. The fa-mily lived in a square red brick house, with bright green "trimmings" in the shape of Venetian blinds, balconies, and railings to the front garden, the extent of which was extremely imited. I forgot to mention that the house was situated in the centre of the highly respectable town of Bodalming, in Surrey. I, good reader, am a clerk in the bank in that town, and I receive a very handsome salary (£95 a year) for my attendance from ten till to all my friends and to all the magazine offices. them at all. My mamma, being one of the most respect-ther she would know whose initials "W. T." were. I felt sure that she would pity me if she did, for it was evident enough that I was very miserable. However, I had one to confide in; for the only conversable young man in the town was that horrid Tom Bagshaw, who positively mutilated my copy of the above verses by scratching out "tearless," and sticking in "brainless." But he's a brute.

LUXURIES .- A New York paper, that finds an echo in one of our city journals of "conge-nial feelings," indulges in very lachrymose lamentations over the extravagance of American ladies, who encourage the importation, by wearing them, of eighteen millions of dollars of Merino shawls, silk goods, hats, bonnets, laces, jewelry, and diamonds! Oh! spirit of chivalry! whither hast thou flown? But we have no account of the foreign wines, brandies, cigars, cloths, cassimeres, silks, &c., that are imported for American gentlemen? We'll wager any reasonable sum that the amount imported for American gentlemen is four times as great as that for American ladies! But the question of sexual consumption may be left to settle its own pro-portion. We should like to know by what rule ladies are to be excluded from foreign luxuries, and gentlemen only admitted? Trade, in its thirst for profit, must regulate this point. As to our ability to pay for all we import, who questions that? Have we no cotton? No rice? No flour? No tobacco? No corn? Why, our cotton crop alone will pay for all, and twice as much as all. How are we to bring back from foreign countries the proceeds of all our immense produce, but in commodities that will yield a profit, and find a market? Oh! ye

GEORGETOWN AND ITS AFFAIRS.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph. GENTLEMEN: I avail myself of the privilege extended in the note following the remarks of Heights," in your paper of the 12th instant. "Heights" states that the taxes on property in this place have been reduced. I deny it: it is not so. The taxes are now what they have been for ten years; and if any confidence is to be placed, or opinion formed, from the speeches and votes of the bell-weather of the party, no change will be made. The mayor, out of doors, and in his written remarks, says, he can get on with a reduced tax: his friend and mouthpiece in the Corporation says and votes to the

As regards the sinking fund, the mayor was not the originator of it; he is merely carrying out the views of F. D., sen., esq., and the acts of the Corporation.

"Heights" and myself agree in one thingthat is, the industry of the mayor; for he is indefatigable in violating an express law of Congress, he being at the same time an officer, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Look at the one and two-dollar notes in circulation, bearing his signature-from 50,000 to 70,000. The interest upon this illegal issue is the sinking fund that is paying off the debt of the town.

If it is wrong in bankers to issue small notes, how can it be tolerated in an officer of the United States? Say nothing more of nullification in South Carolina and Massachusetts.

A CITIZEN. Georgetown, April 14, 1851.

Georgetown, April 14, 1851.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph. GENTLEMEN: I was somewhat surprised, on Saturday, to find nearly an entire column of the Telegraph taken up by "Heights," in an ansuccessful effort to justify the course pursued by him in his former communication; but so far from succeeding, he gets deeper into the difficulty, and commits, to a greater extent, some of the very sins for which he lectures me-that of particularizing especially. He also undertakes to correct an error which I never committed. That Georgetown is celebrated for its institutions of learning, no one will deny; but had 'Heights" been as well acquainted with its history as he would have us believe he is, he would have known that every institution named by him is considered private, and not a public place of learning; and my remarks were confined strictly to public schools. In our town, at the present time, there is no news of any moment afloat; but I find quite a number of improvements under way, and changes taking place. On the corner of West and Montgomery streets, Mr. R. Daw has built a beautiful and commodious brick house, which is truly an ornament to that part of the town; and near the corner of Beall and Dunbarton streets there is in course of erection a large frame, owned by our worthy townsman, Mr. O. Z. Muncaster.

The antique front of the tailoring establishment of Mr. E. Cammack, on Bridge street, has been removed to make room for a beautiful fancy front, which is truly an ornament to the our merchants, of every class, literally crowded clude that they calculate on doing a heavy

The long wharf at the foot of Jefferson street, which has been lying nearly idle for several years, has been leased by Mr. Charles Myers, who has commenced thereon an extensive wood and coal business; also, the wharf on the canal, formerly occupied by Wm. I have been credibly informed that Wm. J. Goddard has sold or leased his carriage manufactory to Messrs. Reeside and Vanderwerken.

The beautiful piece of property, near the corner of Washington and Dunbarton streets, formerly the residence of the late Daniel Kurtz, has been purchased by Mr. F. Wheatly, where, I understand, he intends residing in future. The supply of fish at the wharf is good, and prices moderate. The sugar sale of the Messrs. Dodge was postponed, on account of the weather, until noon of Tuesday. LOW-LANDS.

OMNIBUS LINE.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph.

GENTLEMEN: Some days ago I saw a hint in the "Telegraph" respecting an experiment of running a line of stages from the Capitol to Georgetown, by the way of Seventh street, and I thing the hint too good to be lost. I am a resident of the northern portion of the city, and, with my neighbors, feel the want of a connexion with the city proper by means of an omnibus
